

MEET OUR NEW COUNTRY CHAIR ALI AL-JANABI

Ali Al-Janabi

I am really pleased to step in as Shell Country Chair and Vice President Upstream UAE. I am looking forward to integrating Shell Abu Dhabi and Shell Dubai towards a single Country Chair unit that will simplify interfaces with government and other external (and internal!) stakeholders. I am also excited to step in to support and drive the growth across the different lines of business that are operating in and from the UAE.

This year we celebrate our 80 year presence in country, a proud history and legacy that has been handed over by our predecessors as we look forward for Shell to continue to be part of the UAE's energy fabric. The UAE carries a special place in my heart, having lived here for 15 years, where I am fortunate to witness the leaps and transformations being undertaken during this period and into the future. I am joined by my wife Noor whom I met and got married to here, and we are blessed with three daughters who were all born in the UAE.

- Ali Al-Janabi, Country Chair and Vice President Upstream, UAE

Ali is a graduate of Imperial College London where he obtained a Masters of Engineering degree in Civil & Environmental Engineering in 1996, and in 2000 he earned a Master's degree in Strategy & Finance from Kingston Business School. Ali also holds a Financial Services Authority Qualification in Financial Regulation and Derivatives. His career started in 1996 in construction with Taylor Woodrow focusing on project management of heavy civils and infrastructure projects in Africa and in 1998 he moved to Halliburton in the UK to work within Project Engineering and Field Development Planning of projects in the UK North Sea, Gulf of Mexico, CIS and Asia.

Ali first joined Shell in London in September 2001 and held different roles in commercial, trading, asset management and country leadership across Upstream, Integrated Gas and Downstream businesses.

In 2007 he moved to work for Goldman Sachs as Head of MENA Commodities Franchise and lead LNG Expert, and rejoined Shell at the end of 2009.

Ali is British of Iraqi origin.
